architecture
03 17 66

UNIVALA

Vol. 1, No. 4 Huntsville, Alabama August 17, 1966

This crane by the new Graduate Studies building is shown just before it swung another segment of the building's ornamental columns into place. The work is being done by Gresham, Williams and Johnson of Decatur.

Dr. Roberts Traces Beginnings of UAH

Dr. Frances Roberts, professor of history here, called the Huntsville campus the "fulfillment of an idea born in the minds of men" before more than 100 incoming freshmen at an orientation session July 29.

The idea of a local institution of higher learning was first brought up in 1935, she said, when the University of Alabama asked the Chamber of Commerce to find out if the people of Huntsville would support an extension center.

Although the survey failed to find enough support, interest in the idea was stimulated by a war training program conducted here by the U. of A. during the Second World War.

Dr. Roberts told her audience that the idea was raised again in 1947 by local lawyer Pat Richardson who persuaded the Chamber of Commerce to re-examine the possibilities. The results were encouraging and, the following year, the Chamber appointed a committee to approach the University of Alabama about establishing an extension center here.

The committee included Pat Richardson as chairman, Reese Amis, editor of the Huntsville Times, Vance Thornton, city councilman, and representatives of the city and county schools and the Veterans Administration, she stated.

Dr. Roberts said the decision to establish the Huntsville center was made November 15, 1949, at a meeting attended by Dr. John M. Gallilee, president of the University of Alabama, and the city's chief governmental, educational, and industrial leaders. They agreed the University would provide the faculty and the city would make a building available and guarantee 200 students.

She then showed the new students a copy of the schedule used by the Huntsville campus when it first opened its doors as an extension center in January, 1950 at Butler High School. It was a single mimeographed sheet listing nine sections in seven subjects. The new fall quarter lists 249 sections in 175 subjects.

Graduate Studies Bldg. To Open for Fall Term

Graduate students at UAH will bid goodby to Morton Hall and the Research Institute when the new Graduate Studies building on Sparkman Drive opens with the fall quarter.

In addition to classrooms the new facility will house some administrative functions of the graduate program and the short courses and conference activities.

A small computation lab will back up the science and math courses. The library will occupy a portion of the ground floor.

Space will also be set aside for a faculty conference room, faculty offices, study areas, and a pair of galleries overlooking the lagoon.

The new building will enable the Huntsville campus to offer Master of Science degrees in mathematics, physics, and engineering.

The engineering degrees can be specialized in aerospace, electrical, mechanical, or industrial engineering or in engineering mechanics. Graduate work not leading to a degree will be offered in chemistry, public administration, and education.

The Graduate Studies building is scheduled to be completed September 15. Equipment for the building is on order.

Future of Huntsville Campus Outlined for New Freshmen

The immediate future of the University of Alabama in Huntsville was outlined for incoming freshmen at an orientation program in the Research Institute July 29 by H. Clyde Reeves, vice-president for Huntsville affairs.

Building will be one of the major activities here for quite a while yet, he told them, and they should expect some dust and noise.

"You may get your shoes dirty," he said, "but it will be to your benefit and to the benefit of those who come after you."

Mr. Reeves told the more than 100 new students that the university is planning two more buildings to be constructed after the graduate studies building, now under construction, is finished. One will house the school's library and the other, science and engineering classes. A student union building will follow these.

The immediate goal of the Huntsville campus, he stated, is to serve the students within commuting distance. Dormitories will have to wait until facilities here are adequate to satisfy the needs of local and area students.

The new freshmen who heard Mr. Reeves' welcome spent the morning and part of the afternoon taking the university's placement tests. The afternoon orientation session began with a brief history of the Huntsville campus given by Dr. Frances Roberts. She was followed by the officers of the Student Government Association, who explained the organization of the SGA and talked about student activities.

A panel drawn from the faculty and administration then discussed various aspects of the university's program and answered questions posed by the new students.

Scott Explains Schedule Changes

The changes in length and frequency of some classes for the fall quarter will benefit both students and faculty according to Dr. Charley Scott, director of instruction.

Among the advantages of the new system, Dr. Scott lists greater flexibility in developing student schedules and elimination of four-hour instruction periods for faculty members.

The change will also result in "better timing for preparation and absorption of material by the student, opportunity to offer an increased variety of instruction, and more desirable hours for evening classes," he said.

The shorter, 75 minute classes will fall on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Others, largely on Tuesdays and Thursdays, will continue to meet twice a week but only for a total of 225 minutes each week.

Finals Near

Students at the Huntsville Campus will enter the quarterly ordeal again next week. The following schedule will be in effect during exams:

Tuesday, August 23:
- M-W I 9:30 a.m. - 12 noon
- M-W III 2:00 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.
- M-W VI 7:00 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.

Wednesday, August 24:
- T-Th II 9:30 a.m. - 12 noon
- T-Th IV 4:00 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.
- T-Th V 7:00 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.

Thursday, August 25:
- M-W II 9:30 a.m. - 12 noon
- M-W IV 4:00 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.
- M-W V 7:00 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.

Friday, August 26:
- T-Th I 9:30 a.m. - 12 noon
- T-Th III 2:00 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.
- T-Th VI 7:00 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.

Classes will meet on Monday, August 22, as usual.

Ale, man, ale's the stuff to drink
For fellows whom it hurts to think.

—A. E. Housman

Research Institute Given New Dress by Bulldozers

The landscaping presently under way at the Research Institute is scheduled to be completed by the middle of October according to Ray Langlois, plant and materials superintendent.

The project includes the removal of excess dirt in front of the Research Institute, the creation of a lagoon between it and Sparkman Drive, and the construction of a new road across the dam that holds the lagoon.

The grading in front of the Research Institute will allow motorists on Sparkman Drive an unobstructed view of the building.

In addition to being an important part of the University's plan to beautify the Huntsville campus, the lagoon will provide much-needed control over heavy runoff water.

The water impounded there may be used for industrial cooling purposes.

The new road will provide freer access to the Research Institute from Sparkman Drive.

Ashburn and Gray are doing the work.

Work on the new lagoon in front of the Research Institute has been slowed by heavy rains but is still expected to be finished by mid-October.

COMMENT:

New Gallery Show Features Local Talent

By Myrna Copeland

The new art gallery "The Image" in Huntsville has shown elements of genuine stature in its opening exhibit. Jim Williams proprietor and artist), Sas Risse, Bill Aycock, and Mary Cobb Martin represent not only a cross section of local art endeavor, but a worthwhile representative picture of the American art scene in general. Mr. Williams, a mature and thoughtful artist, uses color, texture, and special imagery in his abstract impressionist oils.

Particularly challenging mystical ideas are propounded in "The Visit", "The Fable", and "In the beginning...". The few pieces of sculpture exhibited by Williams are ingeniously primitive with an air of the "found" about them.

Sas Risse's work leans toward the topical area of expression with the suggestion of the gadfly about it. Examples of this are "Strange Fruit", "Yassah", and "Freedom Road"; all dealing with racially inspired searches for individual identity. All of Mrs. Risse's work is concerned with the individual in his various roles: mother and child in "feminine Mystique" and the country people in "The Fiddler".

The pottery of Bill Aycock is finely crafted and expertly finished, with glazes and shapes suggesting the hill-country influence of our Appalachia region.

Perhaps the only low point in the current exhibit is the work of Mary Cobb Martin. It is evident that she is a commercial illustrator by profession, and although this aids in the cleverness and decorativeness of her paintings, it unfortunately does not contribute to her stature as an artist.

While preparing for this first issue, it was found that the Huntsville Art League and Museum Association offers student or "Junior" memberships for those interested in taking an active part in the Huntsville art scene. Upon furthur inquiry it was found that these memberships have an age limit of 18, thus precluding a reduced rate for the bulk of our students. Our staff feels that with the proposed growth of the campus Art Department there should be an increased interest in HALMA and have asked their Board to consider a reduced membership for our students. The outcome will be reported.

The Huntsville Summer Theatre production of "The Drunkard", opening tonight, promises to be a great evening. Their box office offers Student Theatre Party reduced rates. Please contact me immediately if you are interested in an evening at the theatre.

HST's "The Drunkard" Opens Tonight in Mall

The Huntsville Summer Theatre's new production of last summer's smash "The Drunkard" is scheduled to open tonight at the Mall Theatre. The play, brought back by popular demand, will run through August 27.

Joe Dickenson recreates his lead role of Edward, supported by Jack Hartwell as Cribbs the Villain, Charlene Hughes as Mary, Jane Couchois as Mad Agnes and a fresh young talent Mike Meigs as William. Grace Moore rounds out the list of major characters in her portrayal of Miss Spindle.

"The Drunkard," author unknown, was written in the late 19th Century for a cast of 57. It was produced repeatedly until the turn of the century as a serious temperance play and then lay forgotten until a California company unearthed and adapted it to modern audiences in 1955.

Leah Munson, director of the Huntsville group, caught a San Francisco edition of the adaptation. She adapted the play for Space City mods and the present classic melodramatic production is the result. The audience, seated at tables with old-fashioned cider and popcorn, is encouraged to participate in the action like a traditional (or modern Eupopean) audience.

Curtain time will be 8 P.M. Huntsville Campus students interested in a threatre party for this play should contact Mrs. Copeland at 883-0472.

"A periodically changing program is planned for the gallery, with particularly challenging artists (such as Sas Risse) being invited for return visits," stated Mr. Williams.

Image Show Still Open

The first showing at "The Image", a new art gallery at 2205 Whitesburg Drive, will be open to the public through Friday, August 19. Featured in the opening exhibit are Bill Aycock, Mary Cobb Martin, Sas Risse, and Jim Williams.

Mr. Aycock, a stoneware potter, has shown previously in Birmingham and Horse Pens 40. Mrs. Martin, showing oils and mixed media, is currently the illustrator for a Huntsville department store.

Mrs. Risse has studied art in Indianapolis, and at the University of Florida and the University of Alabama in Huntsville. She has shown recently in Birmingham, Gadsden, the Southeastern Sears Jury Show, and the 1st National Bank Exhibit in Huntsville. Both she and Mr. Williams have primarily oil paintings in the current exhibit.

Jim Williams has shown widely, both in the southeast and in California. He recently won 1st place in the oil category at the First Annual Huntsville Jury Show. A few pieces of his sculpture are also included in the gallery.

Mr. Williams, the proprietor, as well as an exhibitor, of "The Image", has announced a completely new show to be opened on August 21. It will feature the painters Phillip Givan and R.E. Mosely, as well as a sculptor and a potter; all members of the Artist' Guild of Nashville.

UNIVALA

EDITOR Frances Smith Glynn

BUSINESS MANAGER John Johnson

ACTING EDITOR – William Simmons

NEWS – William Simmons, Bob Gardiner

FINE ARTS – Myrna Copeland

ENTERTAINMENT – Dru Moody

4711-1/2 Holmes Ave. N. W. Ext. 247

Self-Service Bookstore in New Location

The bookstore, now located in the old student lounge, is doing business on a self-service basis.

Customers will find textbooks arranged in alphabetical order by subjects. Each subject will be further subdivided by course numbers.

Because of the self-service arrangement, students entering the bookstore will be required to leave their books and related items outside according to Sam McGinnis, bookstore manager.

In the near future, the bookstore plans to increase its stock of supplementary texts, study aids and supplies. A limited amount of basic supplies are presently in stock.

The University of Texas holds the world's record for endowments with $394,354,010.

Deadline for Applications Week Earlier

Registrar Nan G. Hall has announced that the deadline for application for the fall quarter will be September 5 instead of September 12.

Previously, the application deadline for any quarter has been a week before registration. Applications will now be rejected if received within two weeks of fall registration. Deadlines for other quarters will not be affected.

Library Purchases Microcards; Collection to be Split in Fall

One of the newest items in the library is an extensive set of microreproductions. Known as Early American Imprints, it contains a copy of every book known to have been printed in this country prior to 1800.

The set is being supplied by the Readex Microprint Corporation of New York which has printed the greatly reduced works on 6x9 inch plastic cards called microcards.

Of the 38,000 works in this set, 30,000 are listed in Evans' American Bibliography, a work compiled by the nineteenth century American scholar, Charles Evans. The remaining 8,000 titles were unknown to him and have been added by Readex.

As part of the purchase the library has received title cards to help users find any desired work. It also has on order a special opaque projector to enlarge the images on the cards to a readable size.

***

The library's cataloguing department is having a hard time keeping up with the influx of new books even though it processes about 2000 volumes a month.

It is working on the library's order for 27,200 new books selected from the "New College List." This list, developed by the California College System for use in establishing new college libraries there, has been used widely throughout the country by developing colleges.

The order is being handled by Bro-Dart Books of Williamsport, Pennsylvania and will cost approximately $165,000.

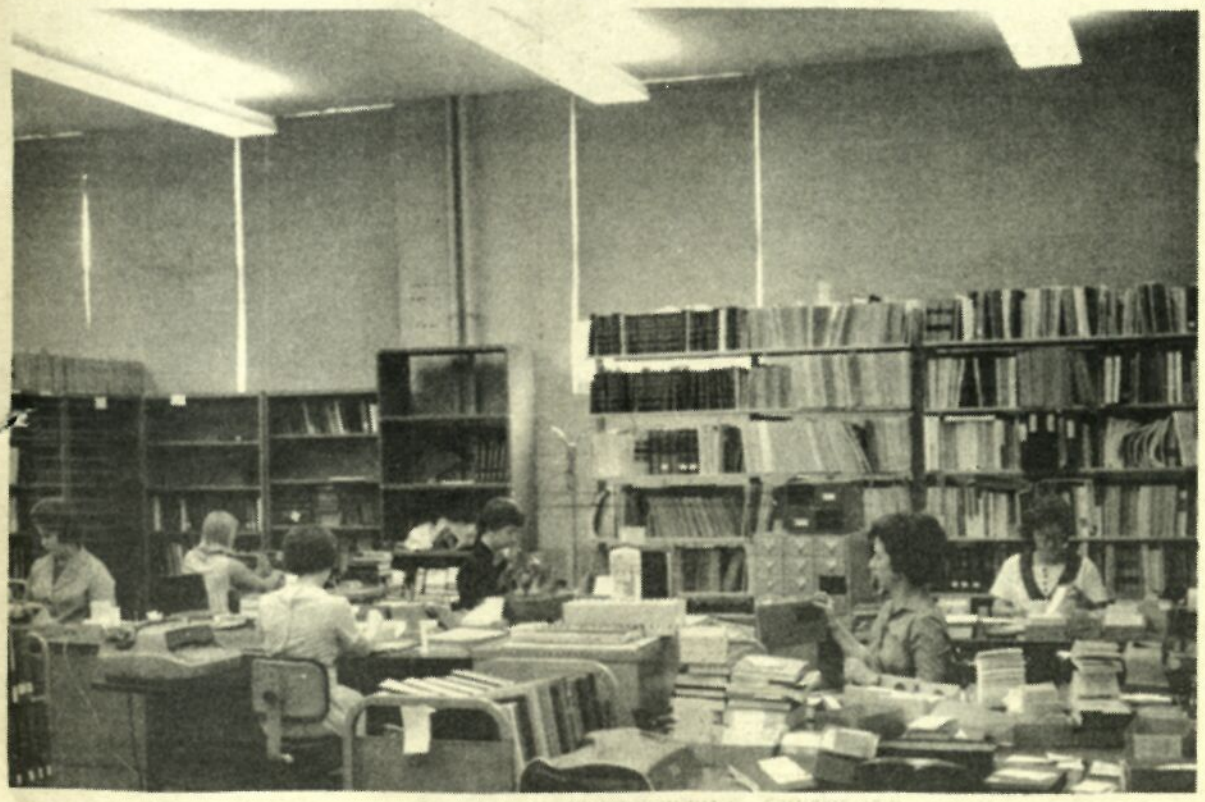

***

The library will be split this fall when the scientific and technical subjects are moved into the Graduate Studies building. The books at the reading room in the Research Institute will be moved there also.

The rest of the library plus a complete card file will remain at Morton Hall.

Miss Janice Harris checks another box of the library's new set of microcards. With 122 boxes in the set, she has a long way to go.

The library's cataloguing department, shown here in temporary quarters in room 100, is working on an order that will more than double the library's holdings. From left to right are Mrs. Dianne Juey, Miss Wendy Hall, Miss Peggy McLemore, Mrs. Corinne Peacher, Mrs. Joy Graham, and Mrs. Onie Mullins.

Somebody Out There Must Like Us . . .

Every once in a while, something comes up to remind you that there's always somebody, somewhere who doesn't get the word. Like this letter that landed in the Records office a few weeks ago.

Las Vegas, Nevada

Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter requesting a athletic scholarship, or at least some form of financial aid. Yes Sir, a baseball scholarship.

I am 21 years old, unmarried. After completion of high school I joined the U.S. Army instead of going to college. I now have my military obligation out of the way.

I've had baseball in my blood for years. I was the only 4 year letterman in baseball in my high school class. I lettered 3 years in football and 1 year in basketball. Baseball is my first love.

I am 6 feet tall, 185 pounds. Left handed. Pitching is the only position I play. I pitched 2 no-hitters my senior year.

I haven't played ball steadily for 2 years, but my younger brother and I are constantly playing catch.

I attended a high school of 600 plus enrollment. We had stiff competition at various times.

I throw extremely hard in my opinion, Sir. Fast ball and curve are my two main pitches.

I know you think I'm a nut for writing you this unordinary letter, but I want to play baseball more than anything. Please consider my request and write my baseball coach.

The reason I have written you is because of:

A. Strong school spirit

B. High amount of humidity (for better curve).

C. Excellent sports program at U. of A.

I am in excellent physical condition. I do not smoke, drink, etc. and have no criminal record other than speeding violations.

Baseball is the one thing in life I really want. Thank you.

As always,
XXXXXXX

P.S. The only reason our family lives in Las Vegas is because my father follows construction and is currently employed at the Nevada Test Site.

I'll send you my scrapbook if necessary.

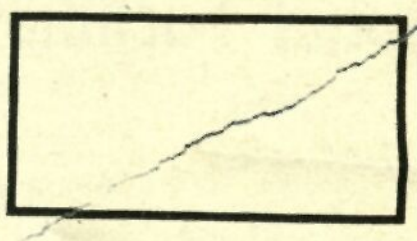

Registrar Nan Hall reports that the letter has been forwarded to Tuscaloosa.

Indian Films Shown by SGA

The S.G.A. sponsored its first cultural event with the showing of two films from India at the Research Institute July 14.

The films, a short documentary and a full length romance, were provided without cost to the S.G.A. by members of the local Indian community. Dr. K. Ram of Northrop Space Laboratories coordinated planning and conducted the showing.

Here's the world's most persuasive box.

It's called a column-inch, and it can buy or sell anything. Our next issue comes out September 19 during registration. Call us any weekday afternoon from 2-4 at ext. 247.

President Rose Comes To Huntsville Campus

Dr. Frank A. Rose, president of the University of Alabama, is becoming more familiar with the Huntsville campus as a result of recent visits here.

Dr. Frank A. Rose, president of the University of Alabama, has become a more familiar sight at the Huntsville campus.

Dr. Rose visited Morton Hall July 22 while in Huntsville to address the Alabama Bar Association. On this unofficial visit, he inspected the building program here with H. Clyde Reeves, vice-president for Huntsville affairs.

President Rose returned to Huntsville August 5 for the first meeting of an advisory board he recently appointed to assist in planning the development of the Huntsville campus. He plans to be back September 13 for a meeting of the UAH faculty.

Dr. Rose is one of the youngest men to become president of the U. of A. He came to Tuscaloosa in 1958, just three years after he was named one of the Ten Outstanding Young Men of the United States. Yet, he had already been president of Transylvania College for seven years.

Having received his A.B. at Transylvania, Dr. Rose later took his LL.D. there. He has also done graduate work at the University of London.

In 1960, Dr. Rose was elected to the South's Hall of Fame for the Living. The previous year he was a delegate with the United States Committee to the Atlantic Congress, NATO. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa honorary fraternity and the Newcomen Society of England.

This Month's Fare

ALABAMA

The next feature will be "Torn Curtain", a Hitchcock thriller, teaming Julie Andrews and Paul Newman.

LYRIC

August 17 — "Around the World Under the Sea" with David McCallum, Lloyd Bridges and Shirley Eaton is scheduled to end today.

August 18 — The next feature is "Glass Bottom Boat" with Doris Day, Rod Taylor, and Arthur Godfrey.

August 25 — Bob Hope and Elke Sommer star in the comedy "Boy, Did I Get a Wrong Number."

September 1 — The holiday weekend will feature "What Did You Do in the War, Daddy?" starring James Coburn and Dick Shawn.

MARTIN

August 17—"Assault on a Queen", a modern day piracy of the luxury liner the Queen Mary. Starring together are Frank Sinatra and Virna Lisi.

August 23—Hayley Mills and Rosalind Russell star in "The Trouble with Angels", a comedy concerning life in a parochial boarding school.

August 30—"This Property is Condemned" is a robust picture, which brings back the 30's with a little bit of magic. Starring Natalie Wood and Robert Redford, it deals with a small town southern beauty who longs for the freedom and excitement of the big city.

Baptists Meet, Discuss BSU

Local Baptist youths gathered at West Highlands Baptist Church, August 5, to discuss the creation of a Baptist Student Union here.

They heard Maurice Willis, state BSU director and a panel discussion by students active in BSU work at Auburn and Tuscaloosa. The discussion was followed by a film about the work of active Baptist Student Unions.

Plans for a social to be held shortly after registration were also discussed. Exact time and place are to be announced.

When I was one-and-twenty
I heard a wise man say,
"Give crowns and pounds and guineas
But not your heart away;
Give pearls away and rubies
But keep your fancy free."
But I was one-and-twenty,
No use to talk to me.

"The heart out of the bosom
Was never given in vain;
'Tis paid with sighs a-plenty
And sold for endless rue."
And I am two-and-twenty,
And Oh, 'tis true, 'tis true.

—A. E. Housman

Morton Hall to Have ...itional Facilities

The ... Image", a ... Whitesburg ... to the public thro... 19. Featured in the d... are Bill Aycock, Mary ...

Former storage areas and general purpose classrooms in Morton Hall will be set aside for specific activities as a result of the remodeling there.

Room 200, upstairs, is being converted into a language lab with a pair of adjacent listening rooms. Faculty offices will occupy room 201.

The chemistry department's laboratory facilities are being upgraded by the improvement of the present lab in room 226 and the conversion of room 224, formerly a demonstration room, into a second lab.

What was previously a storage area at the northwest end of the basement is being subdivided. The space will be used for two electrical engineering laboratories with a shop and a supply room.

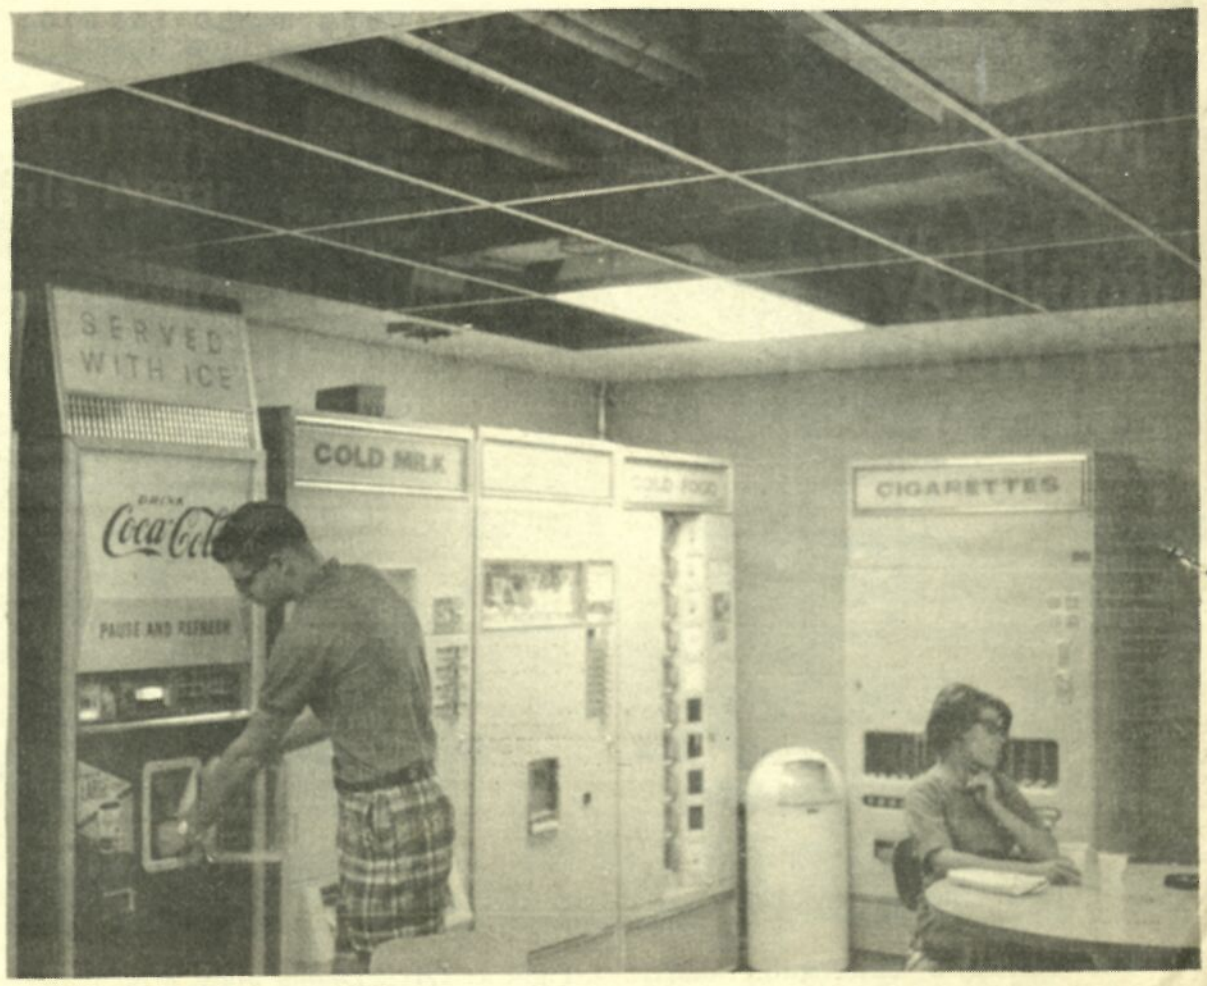

The former auditorium, room 100, will accomodate the new music department.

Room 10 is being cut in two. One side will be a large classroom and the other a psychology classroom surrounded by five small labs. An adjacent room will be used by the administration.

The bookstore has been moved into the old student lounge where it is able to do business on a self-service basis.

Half of the former mechanical drawing room at the southeast end of the basement has been made over to accomodate the relocated lounge. Some adjoining rooms are to be set aside for use by the S.G.A.

McAllister and McQuinn Contracting Co., Inc. is contractor for the remodeling. The project is costing approximately $93,000 and after its completion about $75,000 worth of new equipment will be added to the new laboratory areas.

Rick Coleman goes for a drink while his fellow student Gayle Urbanski ponders the fate of the old student lounge. Actually, the crowded serving area they share is supplemented by a new lounge just down the hall.